

will anchor a semesterlong examination of cultural processes, performances, and practices. Students in the course will become familiar with the critical-cultural perspective and lens to understand the dynamic ways consumers make sense of social class today.

