

CAS Core Facilities Spring Report

The CAS Core Facilities Committee seems not to have been renewed for 2019-2020. There is no official meeting notes or reports for this assembly. On the up-side, much of the new equipment purchased with carry forward money has now been delivered and is being installed. Space issues appears to be the biggest problem facing core facilities at the current time and must be addressed if the university is to keep current with analytical instrumentation needed for high impact research.
