TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Applied Research Methods

Spring 2014 – 2017

Was a co-instructor in an undergraduate course designed to provide advanced study in the application of research methods to contemporary problems in the behavioral and community sciences. The course utilized problem-based learning (PBL) as the primary instructional approach.

ProSeminar I

Fall 2013, Spring 2014

Was a co-instructor for a graduate proseminar taught as part of the BRIDGE Graduate Certificate. The focus of the seminar was on preparing students for applying to graduate school.

Evaluation of Clinical Practice in Diverse Settings

Fall 2010, 2012, 2014

Was the instructor for a graduate-level research course in the School of Social Work at the University of South Florida. This advanced course built the foundation course and covered topics of program evaluation, single subject/system design, and statistical and qualitative concepts to facilitate the use of empirical and evidence-based interventions in social work practice in diverse settings.

Measurement Issues in Behavioral Health Services Research and Evaluation Spring 2010, Summer 2012, 2014

Served as a co-instructor for an advanced graduate measurement course in College of Behavioral and Community Sciences at the University of South Florida. The course covered issues of both quantitative and qualitative measurement at the individual, process, and system levels. Emphasis was on measurement at the individual, process, and system levels.

Quantitative Analysis for Social Workers

Spring 2004, 2006

Was a visiting faculty member and taught a doctoral level statistics course in the School of Social Work at Memorial University in St. John's Newfoundland, Canada. The course covered descriptive and inferential statistics through regression analysis and factor analysis and included extensive hands on experience using SPSS and interpreting and summarizing results.

Mental Health Planning, Evaluation, and Accountability

Fall 1998–2005, Spring 2006–2017

Taught a required doctoral level course in evaluation, planning, and accountability offered by the Louis de la Parte Florida Mental Health Institute at the College of Public Health at the University of South Florida. This survey course covered a broad range of evaluation methodologies and issues. The course was modified and taught as a web based course beginning in the spring 2007 and now alternates each year between online and inclass delivery modes

Clinical Social Work Research

Spring 1997–2003, 2005

Co-taught a graduate level research course in the School of Social Work at the University of South Florida. The course emphasized research and evaluation methodologies and data analytic strategies that are helpful in assessing clinical interventions and program effectiveness.

Field Research I and II

Fall 1997–2005, Spring 1998–2006

Supervised graduate students completing research projects in partial fulfillment of their M.S.W. degrees from the School of Social Work at the University of South Florida. Field Research I course focused on study implementation issues such as human subject reviews requirements, instrument development and pilot testing while Field Research II emphasized preparation of data for analysis of data using SPSS PC, and reporting of research findings.

Educational Research

Fall 1994–1995

Taught a first level graduate research seminar in the Department of Educational Psychology and Statistics, School of Education, State University of New York at Albany. The course emphasizes research design, measurement issues, and statistical analysis.
